

Human Rights CouncilFifty-first session

12 September–7 October 2022

Agenda item 3

Promotion and protection of all human rights, civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights, including the right to development*Resolution adopted by the Human Rights Council on 7 October 2022*51/23. Human rights and transitional justiceThe Human Rights Council,*

Guided by the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 and the Additional Protocols thereto of 8 June 1977, other relevant international human rights law and international humanitarian law instruments and the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action,

Recalling Commission on Human Rights resolutions 2005/70 of 20 April 2005, on human rights and transitional justice, 2005/81 of 21 April 2005, on impunity, and 2005/66 of 20 April 2005, on the right to the truth, Human Rights Council resolutions 9/10 of 24 September 2008, 12/11 of 1 October 2009, 21/15 of 27 September 2012, 33/19 of 30 September 2016 and 42/17 of 26 September 2019, on human rights and transitional justice, 9/11 of 18 September 2008, 12/12 of 1 October 2009 and 21/7 of 27 September 2012, on the right to the truth, 10/26 of 27 March 2009 and 15/5 of 29 September 2010, on forensic genetics and human rights, Council decisions 2/105 of 27 November 2006, on the right to the truth, and 4/102 of 23 March 2007, on transitional justice, General Assembly resolution 68/165 of 18 December 2013, on the right to the truth, as well as Council resolutions 18/7 of 29 September 2011, 27/3 of 25 September 2014, 36/7 of 28 September 2017 and 45/10 of 6 October 2020, on the Special Rapporteur on the promotion of truth, justice, reparation and guarantees of non-recurrence,

Recalling also General Assembly resolution 60/147 of 16 December 2005, in which the Assembly adopted the Basic Principles and Guidelines on the Right to a Remedy and Reparation for Victims of Gross Violations of International Human Rights Law and Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law,

Recalling further the set of principles for the protection and promotion of human rights through action to combat impunity,¹ and the updated version of those principles,²

¹ E/CN.4/Sub.2/1997/20/Rev.1, annex II.

² E/CN.4/2005/102/Add.1.

Recalling the report of the Secretary-General on the rule of law and transitional justice in conflict and post-conflict societies³ and his follow-up report on the same topic,⁴ including the relevant recommendations contained therein, and his reports issued in 2006,⁵ 2012,⁶ 2013⁷ and 2014⁸ outlining a programme of action to enhance the effectiveness of the support provided by the United Nations system for the promotion of the rule of law in conflict and post-conflict situations,

Recalling also the guidance note of the Secretary-General on the United Nations approach to transitional justice of 19 April 2010, and noting that it is currently being revised to address the contemporary challenges of transitional justice,

Recalling further General Assembly resolution 70/1 of 25 September 2015 entitled “Transforming our world: the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development”, including its goals and targets, inter alia Sustainable Development Goal 16, on promoting peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development, providing access to justice for all and building effective, accountable and inclusive institutions at all levels, and recognizing that transitional justice can contribute to this Goal, inter alia through its objectives of combating impunity, granting access to justice and transforming conflict,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 70/262 of 27 April 2016 on the review of the United Nations peacebuilding architecture, and Security Council resolution 2282 (2016) of 27 April 2016, in which the Assembly and the Council recognized that development, peace and security, and human rights are interlinked and mutually reinforcing and, inter alia, stressed that a comprehensive approach to transitional justice, including promotion of healing and reconciliation, a professional, accountable and effective security sector, including through its reform, and inclusive and effective demobilization, disarmament and reintegration programmes, including the transition from demobilization and disarmament to reintegration, are critical to the consolidation of peace and stability, promoting poverty reduction, the rule of law, access to justice and good governance, further extending legitimate State authority, and preventing countries from lapsing or relapsing into conflict,

Recalling also the report of the Secretary-General on peacebuilding and sustaining peace⁹ describing the restructuring of the peace and security pillar of the United Nations, management reform and the reinvigorated resident coordinators system,

Taking note of the United Nations-World Bank group study Pathways for Peace: Inclusive Approaches to Preventing Violent Conflict of 13 April 2018 and of such initiatives as the Pathfinders for Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies,

Affirming that impunity for gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law, including genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, encourages their recurrence and is a fundamental obstacle to sustainable peace at the national level, and also to the furtherance of cooperation among peoples and the promotion of international peace and security,

Acknowledging that the fight against impunity and the implementation of transitional justice processes, including the promotion of truth, justice, reparation and guarantees of non-recurrence, can prevent the recurrence of past atrocities, genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, or similar violations and contribute to sustainable peace and development,

Underlining the fact that, when designing and implementing strategies, policies and measures to address gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law, including genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, the specific context of each situation must be taken into account with a

³ S/2004/616.

⁴ S/2011/634.

⁵ A/61/636-S/2006/980 and Corr.1.

⁶ A/66/749.

⁷ S/2013/341.

⁸ A/68/213/Add.1 and A/69/181.

⁹ A/72/707-S/2018/43.

view to preventing the recurrence of future violations and to ensure social cohesion, nation-building, ownership and inclusiveness at the national and local levels with a view to promoting reconciliation, sustainable peace and development,

Emphasizing the importance of a comprehensive transitional justice approach incorporating the full range of judicial and non-judicial measures, including, among others, individual prosecutions, reparations, truth-seeking, institutional reform, vetting of public employees and officials, memorialization initiatives, and processes to achieve shared narratives or an appropriately conceived combination thereof, in order to, inter alia, ensure accountability, serve justice, provide remedies to victims, promote healing and reconciliation, establish national independent oversight of the security sector, restore confidence in the institutions of the State and promote the rule of law in accordance with international human rights law and international humanitarian law,

Recognizing the importance of assisting States that have undergone past atrocities, upon their request and in cooperation with them, in devising national comprehensive transitional justice strategies with a view to addressing the needs of victims and their right to an effective remedy, to preventing the recurrence of past atrocities or similar violations, to avoiding relapsing into conflict or other forms of violence and to ensuring sustainable peace and reconciliation, acknowledging that the implementation of such a strategy can contribute to both peacebuilding and development efforts, and encouraging the international community to support such processes in a more sustainable manner,

Noting with appreciation the activities of the United Nations, including through its field presences, in assisting States to design, establish and implement transitional justice mechanisms and to promote the rule of law, and encouraging further efforts to ensure that a gender perspective and an approach that is victim-centred and addresses the root causes are fully integrated into all of these activities,

Welcoming the role of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in relation to transitional justice and human rights, including its conceptual and analytical work, and the increased efforts of the United Nations system for joint planning and implementation across the pillars of the United Nations,

Welcoming also the role of the Peacebuilding Commission and its consistent efforts, in cooperation with national and transitional Governments and in consultation with relevant United Nations entities, to incorporate human rights when advising on and supporting country-specific peacebuilding strategies for post-conflict situations in cases under consideration, where applicable,

Welcoming further the investment of the Peacebuilding Fund in projects addressing critical gaps in sustaining peace, and encouraging it to promote context specific transitional justice efforts and processes,

Recognizing the role of the International Criminal Court in a multilateral system that aims to end impunity, establish the rule of law, promote and encourage respect for human rights and international humanitarian law and achieve sustainable peace, in accordance with international law and the purposes and principles of the Charter,

Recognizing also the importance of documenting gross human rights violations and abuses and serious violations of international humanitarian law for the purpose of accountability, the fight against impunity and as a contribution to transitional justice processes, and welcoming the efforts of the Human Rights Council and its mechanisms in this regard,

Taking note with appreciation of the work of the Special Rapporteur on the promotion of truth, justice, reparation and guarantees of non-recurrence,¹⁰

Reaffirming the important role of women in peacebuilding, and noting the substantial link between women's full, equal and meaningful participation, including as agents of change and leaders, in efforts to prevent, resolve and rebuild from conflict and the effectiveness and long-term sustainability of those efforts, and stressing in this regard the importance of women's full, equal and meaningful participation in all these efforts and the need to increase women's access to and role in decision-making with regard to conflict prevention and resolution and peacebuilding,

¹⁰ See A/HRC/51/34 and A/76/180.

Recognizing the fundamental role of civil society, through its engagement, advocacy and participation in decision-making processes, in preventing gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law, including genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, from being committed, or in addressing their legacy by promoting the right to the truth, justice, reparation and guarantees of non-recurrence,

Acknowledging that transitional justice contributes to sustainable peace and security by helping to break cycles of violence and atrocities, delivering a sense of justice to victims and addressing deficiencies in State institutions that may have enabled, if not promoted, those cycles, and underlining the need for its potential in contributing to atrocity prevention, peacebuilding and reconstruction to be properly recognized,

Acknowledging also that the potential of transitional justice to sustain peace and to foster sustainable development depends on the degree to which transitional justice processes are context-specific, comprehensive, victim-centred, gender-sensitive, participatory and nationally owned,

Recognizing the importance of mental health and psychological support services for victims and affected communities from early on and throughout transitional justice processes in helping to address grievances and overcome the intergenerational impact of past gross human rights violations and abuses and serious violations of international humanitarian law,

Recognizing also the importance of information exchange between the Human Rights Council and other relevant bodies of the United Nations on matters relating to transitional justice,

1. Recognizes that States have the primary responsibility for the promotion and protection of all human rights, including the responsibility to protect their populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity;

2. Also recognizes that national efforts to sustain peace, with the support of the international community as applicable, are necessary not only during conflict and in post-conflict situations but also long before conflict breaks out, through the prevention of conflict and addressing its root causes and by ensuring that the respect of human rights and efforts for sustainable development can contribute to lasting peace;

3. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights submitted to the Human Rights Council pursuant to its resolution 42/17,¹¹ in which the Office of the High Commissioner examined how addressing a legacy of gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law through transitional justice measures can contribute to sustaining peace and the realization of Sustainable Development Goal 16;

4. Calls upon States, United Nations bodies and entities, and all other relevant stakeholders to consider the recommendations made in the aforementioned report and to consider using transitional justice processes as a strategic tool to sustain peace and pursue sustainable development, in addition to providing redress for past gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law;

5. Underlines that, in order to maximize the positive impact of transitional justice on sustaining peace and on sustainable development, there is the need:

- (a) To consistently adopt a "past-sensitive lens" in peace and development work;
- (b) To undertake joint, inclusive and integrated analyses, including regarding preconditions for a conducive environment for transitional justice;

¹¹ A/HRC/49/39.

(c) To enhance data collection to measure impact and progress, including by using the Sustainable Development Goals framework;

(d) To adopt measures focused on making a tangible difference in the lives of victims and of the broader population; and

(e) To ensure that participatory approaches and public consultations are construed as inclusive, meaningful and ongoing processes;

6. Calls upon States, where relevant:

(a) To develop and implement comprehensive transitional justice strategies and policies and to establish judicial and non-judicial mechanisms in order to address past atrocities, the needs of victims and their right to an effective remedy, and to prevent the recurrence of such atrocities;

(b) When designing transitional justice processes, to focus on the ability of the proposed measures to foster trust, empower individuals, enhance inclusion, achieve gender equality, and identify and address root causes of conflict, atrocities and human rights violations and abuses;

(c) To ensure that transitional justice initiatives promote transformative processes and outcomes and, in particular, address sexual and gender-based violence, and other gender-based human rights violations and their root causes, such as gender inequality, including by ensuring that their design and implementation benefit from the full, equal and meaningful participation of women, including as agents of change and leaders;

(d) To ensure that their transitional justice process addresses past gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law as a matter of redress to victims, and as a policy that strives for societal cohesion, healing and trust-building and for the transformation of conditions that have led to atrocities and gross human rights violations and abuses;

(e) To promote approaches to transitional justice that address all human rights violations and abuses, including those relating to economic, social and cultural rights;

(f) To include best practices and lessons learned from transitional justice processes in their efforts to realize Sustainable Development Goal 16 and, as appropriate, to design, fund and implement comprehensive transitional justice measures as part of their development efforts;

(g) To further use the Sustainable Development Goals framework to accelerate the design, funding and implementation of transitional justice initiatives and to enhance data collection and reporting on progress and impact;

(h) To recognize the long-term nature of transitional justice processes, to support the plight of victims for truth, justice and reparation, and to establish links to permanent structures, such as national justice systems and national institutions or networks for atrocity prevention;

7. Condemns impunity for gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law, including genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, emphasizes the responsibility of States to comply with their obligations under international law to end impunity, and urges States to seek sustainable peace, justice, truth and reconciliation through comprehensive transitional justice strategies, in particular to thoroughly investigate and prosecute those responsible for such violations and crimes, in order to avoid their recurrence, and to promote reconciliation at the national level;

8. Encourages States and regional and international organizations to acknowledge and support the important role of civil society, including justice advocates, grass-roots groups, victims' associations, and of the media, in addressing gross violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law, including genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, and, where relevant, in the promotion, implementation and monitoring of comprehensive transitional justice approaches and efforts;

9. Underlines in this regard the importance of taking into account the analysis and perspectives of civil society, such as victims' and grass-roots organizations, pertaining to matters of transitional justice by all relevant United Nations bodies and entities;

10. Reaffirms the important role of women in the prevention, in mediation and the resolution of conflicts, and in peacebuilding and in development efforts, and stresses the need for their full, equal and meaningful participation in the design, establishment and implementation of comprehensive transitional justice strategies and processes;

11. Recognizes that young people are critical stakeholders and have an invaluable role to play in the design and implementation of transitional justice mechanisms with a view to the non-recurrence of violations and conflict;

12. Emphasizes the need to provide gender-sensitive human rights training in the context of transitional justice to all relevant national actors, including police, military, intelligence and security services, prosecution staff and members of the judiciary, in dealing with victims of human rights violations and abuses, particularly women and girls, in order to ensure gender sensitivity in the restoration of the rule of law and transitional justice processes;

13. Requests the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to prepare a report on lessons learned and good practices of transitional justice in the context of sustaining peace and of sustainable development, notably Sustainable Development Goal 16, informed by prior regional meetings, and to present it to the Human Rights Council at its fifty-eighth session during an enhanced interactive dialogue;

14. Also requests the Office of the High Commissioner, in preparing the above-mentioned regional meetings and report, to consult with States, the Special Rapporteur on the promotion of truth, justice, reparation and guarantees of non-recurrence, other relevant entities of the United Nations Secretariat, relevant United Nations agencies, funds and programmes, intergovernmental organizations, national human rights institutions, non-governmental organizations and other relevant stakeholders, including practitioners;

15. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

*42nd meeting
7 October 2022*

[Adopted without a vote.]
